Catholic News Bites

Why this August's extraordinary consistory of cardinals is significant

Under the Code of Canon Law, reformed in 1983, there are two types of consistories of cardinals: ordinary and extraordinary. An extraordinary consistory is celebrated in particular cases and all the world's cardinals are called to take part. An ordinary consistory takes place when the pope needs the cardinals' counsel on some important (though routine) issue, or to give solemnity to a papal decision such as the approval of canonisations. The last time that Pope Francis summoned the cardinals to an extraordinary consistory was on 12-13 February 2015. Now that the new Vatican constitution has been published, the Pope is once again calling the cardinals to Rome for an extraordinary consistory. Between 2015 and 2022, many things changed. First of all, in the College of Cardinals. By 2015, Pope Francis had created 15 cardinal electors and five non-electors. In later consistories, he created 73 other cardinals, including 48 electors. The face of the College of Cardinals has profoundly altered in recent years.

Bishop of Kyiv after 100 days of war: 'Please, let us not stop praying for Ukraine'

Marking 100 days since Russian forces invaded his country, the Ukrainian Catholic bishop of Kyiv has called for continued prayer while warning against what he called a "naive pacifism" that would accept peace at any cost. "During the 100 days of the war, Ukraine and the entire international community underwent a transformation of mutual relations. Ukraine has been seen as a victim of war and at the same time as a partner worth helping," Bishop Vitaliy Kryvytskyi of the Diocese of Kyiv-Zhytomyr said in a telephone interview on 1 June. "Many of those who previously did not know where Ukraine was, now know well such places as Bucha, Irpin or Mariupol," he added.

"This war, which we did not want, has made us all much more mature. The war forced us to look at many things with new eyes. It changed our relationships. People who lived around us, who were not our friends, became our brothers overnight," he said.
